

that attention be given to the possibility of bringing the submarine operations against merchant vessels within the principles of search and seizure under international law.

As an alternative he suggested that the conference might even consider whether use of submarine against merchant shipping under any circumstances should be forbidden.

Tomorrow, Admiral De Bon, for France, will make a further argument for retention of the submarine and it was said tonight that even if he were not ready to present in full the estimate of the French government as to all classes of auxiliary craft, he probably would reveal what submarine tonnage is desired.

Some of the delegations, at least, will require further instructions from their governments before they can reply in full to their proposal. The plenary session will be delayed accordingly. In British circles, the fact that inquiries had been sent abroad by some of the delegations was taken tonight as a hopeful sign.

Every power represented a British spokesman said, had determined at least that nothing like the submarine warfare carried out by Germany would ever be employed by them. The British delegates would not push for a speedy decision, he said, believing that the more the question was studied by the public the stronger would be support of the British case.

He added that the British would do everything possible to secure abolition of the submarine, but if that could not be done would join with the other delegates in an effort to lay down rules of war that would restrict submarine usages.

He declared, however, that British statesmen were frankly skeptical of the value of such rules.

Replying to a question as to why Great Britain had declined to sign the convention of London, which did lay down the rules for the regulation of naval warfare, the spokesman said it was because a certain number of people in England had vision enough to realize that war with Germany was coming and that while Great Britain would be tied down, Germany would not be bound. Asked whether, even if submarines were abolished now a combatant nation during a long war might not succeed in building some, the spokesman said that in such a case it would be impossible to get the trained personnel.

JURY VISITS RUBY POSTOFFICE WHERE PEARSON WAS SHOT

(Republican A. P. Leased Wire)

NO. 1 ARIZ., Dec. 22.—The jury before which Placido Silva is being tried on a charge of murder in the superior court here, returned tonight from Ruby, Ariz., where it took place the postoffice-store where Postmaster and Mrs. Frank Pearson were killed during a raid by bandits on August 28 last. This charge against Silva alleges that he participated in the raid during which the Pearsons were killed.

Before the jury and court officials left for Ruby this morning, County Attorney A. H. De Riemer declared that it would be necessary for the party to pass through Pima county on the way to Ruby. He asked if it would be dissolved by passing out of Santa Cruz county.

On request of Judge W. A. O'Connor, who is presiding at the trial, A. J. Tripp, counsel for Silva, agreed that he would not take any legal advantage that might be possible by reason of the court passing out of the county. The court in asking Mr. Tripp to make the promise pointed out that the trip was being taken on motion of counsel for the defendant.

The jury visited the Ruby postoffice-store, where Mr. and Mrs. Pearson were killed, where they viewed the postoffice safe that had been opened by the bandits with an axe. The jury also visited the home of Mrs. Jose Rodriguez to determine whether the postoffice-store could be seen from her front door as she had testified. She testified that she was standing in her front door and saw Silva enter the store with the other raiders. The defendant's home in Arivaca, where the defense contends Silva was during the time of the raid, also was visited by the jury.

No testimony was taken during the trip but the hearing of witnesses will be resumed tomorrow morning. Counsel for both sides tonight announced that they believed the case would go to the jury some time tomorrow.

MARTIAL LAW MAY SOON BE ENDED IN COLORADO FIELDS

(Republican A. P. Leased Wire)

DENVER, Colo., Dec. 22.—Martial law in Huertano county, where miners employed by the Colorado Fuel and Iron company are on strike against wage reductions, will be lifted in 10 or 15 days unless unforeseen complications develop in the coal fields, Adjutant General Patrick J. Hamrock, commandant in the military area, declared here tonight.

"I am eager to have martial lifted as soon as the situation is such that it can be turned over to the Sheriff of Huertano county," he said. The outlook at the present time is 10 to 15 days unless something unforeseen takes place."

The adjutant general stated he was satisfied with the situation in the strike zone except for the "distractions" of some of striking miners in Huertano county. The miners are badly in need of financial aid, he said. "At least 500 families in Huertano county are needing assistance and conditions are steadily becoming worse, because of the failure of the union to give benefits. Without a doubt conditions actually are deplorable."

"Unless immediate relief is afforded it will be up to us to appeal to the American Red Cross for relief. He declared the appearance on the street of various mining camps almost in their bare feet, was not an uncommon sight despite the cold."

"At several of the camps the strikers are out of money and have no means of making any in the mines, inasmuch as the companies have refused to give them work because of their strike activities," Adjutant Hamrock said.

Mine Workers Will File Suit Against Kansas Labor Law

(Republican A. P. Leased Wire)

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 22.—Suit attempting to prove the Kansas industrial court act unconstitutional and invalid will be brought shortly in Kansas, at the instance of the international headquarters of the United Mine Workers of America. John L. Lewis, international president, announced late today. He said Judge Clarkson of Abia, Iowa, general counsel for the United Mine Workers in the Iowa district No. 11, of the union, had been directed to prepare such action.

Mr. Lewis made a brief statement regarding general conditions and prospects in the Kansas coal fields where a contest is in progress between followers of Alexander Howat, whom Lewis deposed from office as president of the union, and union miners and officials who have headed the orders of Lewis and international officers acting at his direction.

The Howat partisans do not recognize the removal and a hearing on the suit brought in the district of Howat and district board officials under him has been in progress since Monday.

Lewis and other international officials and the Southwestern State Coal Operators Association are defendants in the suit.

Congress Recesses To January 3, 1922

(Republican A. P. Leased Wire)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—Congress recessed late today until Jan. 3 for the Christmas and New Year holidays. The house adjourned at 4 o'clock and the senate at 4:30. All business will be suspended during the recess except for tariff hearings by the senate finance committee.

The death list of veterans of the civil war averages 100 a day.

Union Economist Says Rail Funds Improperly Used

(Republican A. P. Leased Wire)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—A saving of two billion dollars annually in the operating costs of the railroads might be realized if the earnings of the roads were not improperly diverted, W. Jett Lauck, identified with the American Federation of Labor, declared tonight in reply to a statement by C. H. Markham, president of the Illinois Central railroad who took exception to what he termed the "campaign of abuse" by certain labor leaders.

Mr. Markham, in a statement Tuesday to the employees of his road criticized the testimony before a senate committee recently of Mr. Lauck and others as being "without a shred of evidence."

Mr. Lauck said that if President Markham and other railway executives hope to retain the loyalty and co-operation of their employees, "they should be scrupulous in ascertaining and stating the truth frankly and openly." He said that the constructive policy of the railroad only embroiled the employees with him, classified as "abusive attacks upon all those who speak for the employees, the reduction of railway wages, and the grabbing from the public treasury of the largest sums obtainable."

WITNESS IDENTIFIES MAN HE SAYS KILLED BROTHER AT ARDMORE

(Republican A. P. Leased Wire)

ARDMORE, Okla., Dec. 22.—An accusation, hurled at Ray Beede, local automobile dealer, by Walter Carroll, witness, brought to a climax today the preliminary trial of Beede and six others charged with murder in connection with the killing of three men at Wilson.

Carroll, a brother of Joe Carroll, who was called to the door of his home at Wilson and shot down by Beede and his associates, was asked to testify, and, after repeating several times, in answer to questions of the prosecution, that he had recognized the man who killed his brother, he was asked if that man was among the defendants. Appearing uncertain at first, he requested that the defendants be asked to stand. When the seven had arisen, he pointed at Beede and said: "That is the man."

The court room hush was broken by the hysterical cry of Mrs. Beede, seated behind her husband, who arose and in agonized voice cried, "He didn't." Carroll, who said he is 28 years old and a barber by trade, testified that he lives next door to his brother and that he was awakened the night of the killing by shooting. Producing his revolver and unloading he went outside, where he said he saw several men in a struggle with his brother. There were five or six men to the best of his knowledge, he stated, and he emptied his revolver at the intruders, he said. He then obtained a rifle, returning to fire five more shots.

He said he saw a man shoving a woman about and heard the woman say:

"Don't do that, Ray," after which, he testified, he had his brother taken to the county jail and locked up.

Attorneys for the defense then put several questions to the witness and on redirect examination he was asked if the man who killed his brother was in the court room. It was then that he pointed to Beede and made his accusation.

General Pershing is six feet tall and weighs 200 pounds.

at half mast, the large portrait of him in the hotel that bears his name is draped, and on every turn there are evidences of the honor and affection in which he is held by those who knew him.

"With all his great mental courage, which never knew surrender, Henry Watterson served his party, his state and his country," Governor Morrow said today in a statement given out by him on hearing of the death of the editor.

"While many did not agree with his political policies, no man ever challenged the integrity of his opinions and he was universally beloved because of his qualities of heart."

"He was Kentucky's most eminent citizen, Judge Robert Wm. Bingham, owner of the Courier-Journal, the paper that so long was a part of the life of the distinguished editor said in a statement sent from Jacksonville, Fla. "His death is a loss to the state but no less a loss of the world."

Henry Watterson, Jr., announcing the arrangements, said that because of the health of his mother it had been decided that it would be inadvisable for her to go to Louisville during the winter.

Hundreds of messages of condolence were received today by Mrs. Watterson from old friends, "Marion Henry," and newspapermen who trained under him. Peculiarly touching was the message from Arthur Crank, editor of the Louisville Times. "Jim and I are weeping for the death of old 'Marster' it read. "Jim" is Jim Wilson, aged negro servant who has resided at the Watterson home for many years.

Colonel Watterson, who with his family came here from Louisville three weeks ago to spend the winter, passed away of heart trouble superinduced by bronchial congestion after an illness of only a few hours.

With only their son and daughter and several grandchildren present, Colonel and Mrs. Watterson celebrated their fifty-sixth wedding anniversary Tuesday. During the day Colonel Watterson contracted a slight cold which was not regarded seriously but yesterday he suffered an acute bronchial attack and was ordered to bed by his physician.

Colonel R. W. Bingham, publisher of the Louisville Courier-Journal, learned of Colonel Watterson's death when he arrived here late today en route to Havana.

From Miami came a tribute from W. J. Bryan, alternately opposed and supported in his presidential aspirations by the pen of Colonel Watterson.

"The country will learn with deep regret of the death of Henry Watterson," said Mr. Bryan. "His ability and long experience and his picturesque style and his impressive and genial personality gave him a conspicuous position among the nation's journalists. He was a unique character—no one can fill his place."

AGED KENTUCKY EDITOR DIES AT FLORIDA RESORT

(Republican A. P. Leased Wire)

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 22.—A simple service attended only by members of his family will mark tomorrow the funeral of Henry Watterson, journalist and soldier, who died today at a hotel here. The body will rest in a vault here until spring when it will be taken to Louisville, Ky., for burial.
